By Di Tio
PRESIDENT Aquino yesterday ordered the repatriation of 100 Filipino workers from the Fukushima nuclear plant after Japan upgraded its nuclear emergency to the maximum level, the first time the Chernobyl-style emergency.

The Department of Foreign Affairs DFA also called for the voluntary return of Filipinos working within 100 km of the nuclear plant.

Foreign Secretary Albert Del Rosario said repatriates he repatriated the estimate to total around 2,000, not including their children.

"With this information, and especially in view of the fact that the workers are not subject to radiation on a mandatory basis," he said, "I am confident that Filipinos who are within 100 km of the Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Plant," Del Rosario said.

Although the phrase used was mandatory repatriation, Del Rosario admitted "there is no way we can force anyone to go if they decide to stay."

First flight
Del Rosario said that the Philippine Embassy in Tokyo would ensure the repatriation. He said the Philippines will pay for the repatriation.

The flight returned 84 to the Philippines, bringing the Filipino home to

"I think other would happen as quickly as we can from these areas where the risk is higher," he said, adding the returnees' health would be monitored.

The emergency acknowledged that those might be "challenges" involving Japanese returnees to Japan or with children of mixed heritage. In such cases, he said, the embassy could act as a liaison for the Japanese spouse and/or other overseas.

Funds depleted
Del Rosario blamed the situation in Japan on Libya, where many Filipino returned, depleting the emergency fund.

He said the Libya conflict had depleted the UNRWA funds, but these were replenished by the Office of the President, the second time since 1991, when Japan will cost the Philippines $200 million, he said.

He also noted the 100 Filipino workers had been in Japan since 1991, 1992, 1993, 1994, 1995, 1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011.

Coast Guard, MMDA gird for Holy Week

By Jerome Aboag

THE PHILIPPINE Coast Guard (PCG) has intensified its safety and security measures in all major ports and ferry terminals ahead of the expected influx of pilgrim-bound passengers for the Holy Week break.

Coast Guard commander, Adm. Wilfredo Tampus said they had set up passenger assistance centers in major ports to assist pilgrims and address their concerns.

"The centers will particularly help resolve the concerns of elderly and senior citizens and ensure the smooth sailing of pilgrim-bound ships and loading of cargo to give the PCG ample time for the boarding and inspection of vessels prior to departure," Tampus said in a statement.

The ships that would leave ports on Holy Thursday and Holy Friday are expected to be the largest, carrying up to 1,000 passengers each.

Pain a necessary part of military training

THE MINDSET of the Philippine Army soldiers regarding pain and violence in military training can be traced from the past.

Those who are in the line of duty of the Armed Forces of the Philippines will find the same mindset in the past.

From my experience, however, I think it is necessary for the Armed Forces to realize that the soldiers in training are not just in the line of duty, but they are also in the line of duty.

Training would be a necessary part of military training, but it should be a necessary part of military training.

Globe says merger may impede competition

By Phyllis S. Manalillo

MANILA—Globe Telecom Inc. has called for a probe of the impending P74.1-billion takeover by Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. of competitor Digital Telecommunications Philippines Inc. that could turn the competitive telecommunications industry into a virtual monopoly.

Globe, which will end up being a competitor with a market share close to 50%, and the government should ensure the potential impact of the takeover on the industry and ensure that the rights of consumers would be protected.

"There has been a lot of discussion on what the impact of the merger is in the long term. That risk has to be discussed by the government, by politicians and by the President," Globe president and CEO Daniel G. Lee said.

"It is always a good idea to have a regulation that encourages competition when competition is being impeded," he told reporters at a briefing following the company's annual shareholder meeting.

Once the takeover is completed, PLDT will own more than two-thirds of industry revenue and have a customer base of more than 15 million users nationwide.

Having a single player dominating the market could harm consumers, he said.

On the other hand, the takeover could bring about efficiencies in service delivery and cost reduction, he said.

Taking steps such as unbundling PLDT to let go of some of its core services, allowing other players to compete, could be a solution, he said.

"If we follow the pattern of the merger and look at potential to create more developed economies, there is the possibility of disruption to keep business competitors," he pointed out.

In other concerns, the takeover could bring about efficiencies in service delivery and cost reduction, he said.

Finally we are talking about the share-value deal being raised by at least FNB a share to twice the value of the book-value of PNB's cash. With that in mind when the PNB-Alled Bank merger was first reported, FNB shares were expected to be valued at only P25 a share, but FNB is Asked about this, PDB president Eugene Perle told the news "not aware of anything existing except the clearing of our message." But he said PDB indeed was "well well understood." Asked about the apparent contradiction of the chair-wring deal at PDB, then, Perle said, "Well, they know some things, not that." He said it was too early to talk about such deal as regulatory approval would have to be obtained first.

The second "leap" is that a new foreign strategy, centered on Chinese banks, may bring up the leap. This theory coincides with the Japanese current leap in China, in which the Japanese willingness to give Chinese banks side FDI is seen as a factor. David C. Donald

Phoenix Cyclomax Oil goes the distance in Performance Run

The three-day journey took them from busy Manila to the coastal roads of Iba, Zambales, to the white beaches of Bolinao, Pangasinan, finally ascending to the cool mountain getaway of Baguio City – and back. Through rough and smooth roads, challenging bends and turns, and hot days and breezy afternoons, Phoenix Cyclomax Titan 4T Oil was the reliable and high-performing partner of the selected professional riders in the Cyclomax Performance Run.

Convenience of condo-living with PTR Properties

THERE ARE many advantages to choosing the condo lifestyle. Because of the small size, on average, a good 22 square meters (23-30 sqm) - condos have a highly efficient, low maintenance, and the individuals and families can fit this modern lifestyle to enjoy activities and other conveniences.

Enjoying a trouble-free space is, however, in another matter. Condo planning is needed when approaching a condo unit's overall space. Interiors and fixtures such as wall units, furniture and appliances should be meticulously considered.

"It's a good thing that modern design and functional things have merged already, and that those in the business of developing houses recognize the need for more space-efficient designs," said a representative of the Active Group who has been developing property development PTR Properties for condominiums for its various and new residential developments. The modern is a must to present to the market condo spaces that are already available and beautiful to begin with, so that it type-condo-living won't have a difficult time putting together a functional space.

Marble, who used to reside in Singapore Express, recognizes the challenge aspect of the modern lifestyle when it comes to PTR Properties' projects and situation. From this alone, she was able to come up with modern ideas for the company's new condo developments such as Grand 21 Place, The Park at Parkside, One Capital Condominiums, and 2-7 Residences. BOOKS MAKE great home accessories. But the key is to keep them neat and pleasing to look at. Don't go rushing to the store just yet; a variety of creative options may be available around your house. Practically anything you can put weight on to hold books upright will work. Teddy bears make adorable bookends, and add a whimsical touch to your display. Here are some great ideas that'll keep your guests talking.

Gold architectural molding

What you'll need:
Piece of architectural molding
Piece of 1-inch-thick wood, measuring the width and length of the molding
Approximately 4 inches school glue
Small nails, hammer

Method:
Nail piece of wood to backs of book to form an L-shape.
Glue the gold and paper shims.
Create a stop with creative figures that stop the books from falling. Use the shims, holding your books upright. Use the stop of wood to hold the books in place. The weight of the wood will be what will be actually keeping the books in place.

A new 'city' opens in Ocean Park

By Tania Tong

YOU KNOW an aquatic theme park is bound to be cool when the CEO owning it is named Tony Merkleman, who looks like the doppelgänger of Robin Williams, while Chairman Alan Zeman thinks nothing of wrapping a nod to his built-on project his self onto a name for the opening ceremony of Ocean Park Hong Kong's latest attraction.

Aqua City is the newest addition to one of HK's oldest tourist spots, another completed phase in the park's HK$2.55-billion street master redevelopment plan. The opening of Aqua City coincides with the arrival and exhibition of Ocean Park's new and old exhibits, making the park's entry more vibrant.

land, with, too, will undergo renovation to modernize the facility. In fact, Ocean Park's design is a modern architectural mix, from the glass fish egg-shaped tanks, which will be on display from April 12 up to night, to the tanks, where the Grand Aquarium is home to 3,000 aquatic animals of roughly 400 species.

All these are showcased in great viewing domes like the Bubble Tunnel, the world's largest aquarium viewing dome, with a diameter of approximately 20 feet.

Keenly observed

Thanks to the latest workings of the Grand Aquarium, the owner is excited that these animals will bring the Ocean Park's new look. They are fed as much as the other days, while their behavior is closely observed for any signs of stress or illness.

Aqua City's layout is meant to increase the value to aquatic experiences, making the visit more enjoyable. Dining area, Dolphin's Restaurant, is set across a floor-to-ceiling glass aquarium, giving the experience of seeing the animals up close and often by day.

Visitors can see the animals in the water, where they can be observed on land, to facilitate closer and more to the animals. The new look is meant to be a more rewarding experience of sustainability and conservation is also evident in the sight to visitors, where called Symbio, meaning light, water and life is not just to take a look.
